	Mountain with holy crater lake,
	with monastery Zikwala Abo Gedam and church Maryan	III.
F. von Kulmer in 1907 calls the mountain Sugalla.  Zikwala is shown on Fra Mauro's map of 1460, with the information that there was a lake and a monastery at the top.
	while the Oromo say Chukwala.	,
The lake is called Dembel (Dambal), 'the Wave'. by the Arsi Oromo.
The elliptical crater lake has a largest diameter of about one kilometre, but a tour along a footpar around the crater is about 6 km long. The circular church of Menfes Kidus was built around 1912/?/ by the Italian engineer Castagna and is surrounded by huts of monks.

ath

There is the venerated tomb of Gebre Menfes Kidus.

"In the forest, I had been told, there now live several hundred bahtawi, anchorites living off berries and grubs, and sleeping in the shelter of rocks. But on 'Abbo Days' - the feasts of Gabre Manfus - they appear in the yellow robes of hermits --" [Marsden-Smedley 1990]

Two churches are found in the Zikwala Maryam monastery. The round one was built by Menilek II in 1880 and designed by the Italian Sebastiano Castagna. Higher up, the church of Kidane Mihret was built during the reign of Haile Selassie.

HCT82 Ziway (Zewaye, Zwai, Zway, Zuway, Zewayie) 07/38 [Gz Ca Po x] town  $07^{\circ}56'/38^{\circ}43'$  1643 m, lake at  $08^{\circ}00'/38^{\circ}50' = HCT84$ , water level of lake 1848 m according to an early source and Dembel as well as Batu locally.

Azaïs in the 1920s uses spelling Lac Zouaï.

The town is centre at least 1969-1980 of Haykoch & Butajira awraja.

The people of the islands of Ziway seem to have been Christians from very early times and although they had no priests still preserved their churches and their ornaments

The small province of Wäj was situated around lake Zway in the 1500s.

The lake Ziway area was one of the about fifteen most important cotton production areas in Ethiopia (except Eritrea) in the 1950s.

Ziway was possibly the fastest growing provincial town in Ethiopia in the early 1990s.

About 300 OLF soldiers who had been taken prisoners in early 1999 were kept at Ziway.

Today, only three of Ziway's islands are occupied, and most Zay people only visit them for religious ceremonies. But Debre Zion on Tullo Guddo remains an active monastery.

Although very shallow, with a maximum depth of about 3.5 metres, the lake covers a sizeable area of about 432 square kms.

The town of Ziway is home to an important fishery centre as well as some horticultural gardens, which export fruit and vegetables.

Storm and heavy rainfall wrecked parts of the town in November 2008.
