| | "I was puzzled by the numbers of freshly broken flakes that we came across from time to time, even flakes that must have been deliberately struck, not broken by accident. Only at the end of our journey did I find the explanation. Diverging southwards from the usual route on the way back to Irgalem, we halted at a village called Darara Dela, and it happened to be market day. It was a 'women's market' - i.e. one where little but local foodstuffs are traded and where the men attend only for social purposes, standing about in groups while the women buy and sell." | | |

"Looking round this market I found stalls where flakes of black obsidian, some with edges carefully worked to reduce the sharpness, were exposed for sale. Inquiry showed that these are widely used as razors (and also, at times, for letting blood) by the Sidamo and Wallamo people - an interesting survival of ancient methods."

Dauro, Dawro, an ethnic group within the Ometo, with a language variety same/?/ as the Kullo

?? Dauro (highland, map p 133 in Eriksson)/ [x]

The people in Dauro (Kullo in another language) and in Konta are called ometi.

Inhabitants in Dauro and Konta look similar to each other but speak different languages.

Ensete is the main crop with both. With the Dauro an animal for food should be killed with a spear.

The birth of a child is not celebrated by the ometi, but when a boy is aged six the /animist/ priest is given a steer as a sign of gratefulness to "the Supreme". Circumcision is at fourteen, at sixteen the boy moves from the care of the mother and lives with the father.

At seventeen he marries and moves into a house of his own.

Clothes differ a little between Dauro and Konta. Those of the Dauro are short, wide trousers and a large mantle with beautiful edges.

Burial ritual is very different between the two groups. The Dauro lay the body in a grave lined with fine textiles. They throw spears high up towards the sky as if trying to hit "the Supreme" in revenge for the death.

[J Eriksson, Okänt Etiopien, Stockholm 1966 p 76-77]

1990s Among 59 political parties listed in October 1994 (from source in July 1991?) there was also the Dawro Peoples' Revolutionary Democratic Organization.

| HBU... geol | Dawa (long river, southern Sidamo) Discoveries of minerals and exploitation has been more in the vicinity than in Dawa river valley itself. Along the Dawa river, gold has been indicated between the Awata and Kojowa affluents. The lower part flows through a valley which would be classed as a relatively young erosion cycle. The valley is relatively wide, with gently sloping sides of exposed bedrock. The titanium minerals rutile and ilmenite were found by Texas Africa Exploration Co. geologists in 1958. A sample from Dawa river contained 2.3 kg of rutile per cubic metre of gravel. In the middle Dawa valley, alkaline syenite composed of microcline albite-oligoclase, biotite, aegirine, and rarely hornblende is associated with biotite granite.
