Debora Valentina Malito is Research Associate at Global Governance Programme of the European University Institute. She has been A. W. Mellon Postdoctoral Research Fellow in Humanities at the University of Cape Town (2015-2017). She has conducted multi-disciplinary research projects on: Global Governance by Indicators (EUI), The Political Economy of Measuring Governance (University of Manchester's ESID and EUI), Responsibility, Protection and Sovereignty in Africa (University of Cape Town).

She holds a MA in International Relations, and a PhD in Political Studies from the University of Milan. Her research interests focus on critical studies of international intervention, state building and governance, with particular attention to: performance indicators; the measurability of political orders; peace and state formation processes; international intervention and African security governance.

She has recently co-authored The Palgrave Handbook of Indicators in Global Governance (in press) with G. Umbach and N. Bhuta. Her publications have appeared in International Peacekeeping, Third World Quarterly, Peace Review. She is currently working on questions of legitimacy and efficacy raised by international interventions in Libya and Mali.
